

From: Haggerty's School for Dogs
To: don@indigopark.com;
CC:
Subject: Arthur Haggerty, dog trainer, dies at 74
Date: Sunday, July 16, 2006 11:08:08 AM
Attachments:

North Korea Times

NorthKoreaTimes.com

Monday 17th July 2006

Issue 816

More Headlines

Olmert on warpath after rocket attacks kill 8 Israelis in Haifa

Lebanon prime minister pleads for ceasefire

UN Security Council imposes sanctions on North Korea

Arab League chief says Middle East peace process dead

Former U.S. Commerce Secretary kills son, commits suicide

As tensions rise, U.S. and Moscow falter on trade

Love Parade party returns to Germany

Eight killed in Hezbollah rocket strikes on Haifa IDF:

Residents from Tel Aviv northward to 'be alert'

Mosley Stops Vargas in 6th Round

Iran warns Israel of 'unimaginable losses' if Syria attacked

G8 document shows splits on nuclear, climate issue

Eleven held for Mumbai blasts

Get North Korea Times headlines emailed to you daily.

XML RSS RSS
Directory

Arthur Haggerty, dog trainer, dies at 74

Big News Network
Saturday 15th July, 2006 (UPI)

Arthur J. Haggerty, known nationally for training dogs for commercials, films and stage productions, has died in Florida, the Los Angeles Times reported.

He was 74.

Haggerty, who died of cancer on July 3 in a hospice in West Palm Beach, Fla., also wrote three books dealing with animals.

A New York City native, Haggerty dedicated much of his life to training dogs of all breeds for television, movies and plays. He also trained dogs for such things as guarding and attacking and drug and bomb detecting.

In the U.S. Army, Haggerty rose to the rank of captain. He received a Bronze Star and three Purple Heart medals in the Korean War.

In 1961, after his discharge, Haggerty returned to New York City, where he founded Captain Haggerty's School for Dogs. Haggerty held onto the captain title as a marketing device.

© Material published on this site is copyrighted to North Korea Times and contributory sources and may not be reproduced without written consent of the relevant copyright owners.

Email this story to a friend

Print story

Haggerty's School for Dogs
New York and Palm Beach
www.HaggertyDog.com
(561) 747-8181
(866) 283-6582
Voted Palm Beach's Favorite Dog Trainer
Successfully Training South Florida Pets Since 1989